

Atomic Habits Goal Planner

10 Week Journal of your Habits Journey

Preface

Welcome to the habit tracker journal. Inspired by James Clear's book Atomic Habits, I have created this journal to help you with all your goal tracking needs! This journal tracks 10 weeks, which hopefully should be enough for you to cement your habit into your daily routine.

The first thing you will see in the journal is the habit contract. The habit contract is where you will put down in writing what you hope to accomplish with your habit, and make yourself a writer promise to yourself. But don't worry, you don't only have to depend on yourself. For the habit tracker, you will also need an accountability partner. Your accountability partner will be the person you report to, to help you stay on track, and make your work seem a little bit more important, when someone else is counting on you to complete your habit.

Also, in the habit contract, you have to make yourself a consequence for not completing the habit. The consequence should be something severe enough that, along with the feeling of not completing your habit, you will also have a punishment. Your accountability partner

Acknowledgements

I'd just like to say thank you for completing this journal. This journal is all up to you, not me, not anyone else. It is your journey to take. But it really does mean something to you how you completed these 10 weeks. It takes real commitment to yourself to actually take initiative to become a better you. I tried to make this journal an easy way to track your journey, alongside Atomic Habits by James Clear. So again, congratulations on completing your 10 weeks!

will help you enforce this consequence, and keep you true to your plan. The consequence could be something like not watching TV, or paying your accountability partner $1 each time you fail to complete your habit.

There are two ways for you to track your habit in this book. The first tracker is the 10 week long tracker, where each day you complete your goal you can mark it down with a different colour for each of the 10 weeks. Through this, you can see visually your journey, and where you maybe fell off the bandwagon, but jumped right back on again. Cause one day of failure doesn't make your journey end. Its how you get back up again that really matters. The 10 week planner also lets you rank each week with an emoji, colouring in the emoji that best represents that week.

The second way this book can help you track your journey is the weekly page spread. In these pages, you get to track your daily journey. Each page has a place for you to reflect on how your habit went each, and lets you rank your week by colouring in stars. There's also an inspirational quote on each page, to encourage you to keep on going!

Hopefully, this journal will help you reach your goals, and if not, hopefully you'll find it fun in the meantime. There are lots of things to colour, including a colouring page full of clocks to get you inspired for your goal.
